ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of securing an animation service. The method comprises providing a requestor with an identifier; associating the identifier with an identity of the requestor; associating the identity and identifier with the animation service; using the identity to retrieve the animation service; requesting the identifier from the requestor; and providing the animation service to the requestor after verifying the association of the identifier and the identity.